OBITUARY.

Rev. Dr. Philip S. Evans.
Former Willimantic parishioners and friends of the Rev. Dr. Philip S. Evans learned with deep regret of his death Wednesday at his home, 571 Ninth street, Brooklyn, N. Y. Dr. Evans was born in the 55th year and died after a brief illness. In May, 1889, Dr. Evans became pastor of the First Baptist church in this city and he served the church until November, 1893. The conspicuous ability of Rev. Dr. Evans as a preacher made him one of the leading Baptist clergymen in eastern Connecticut. His presentation of Christian truths were exemplified by the strong and gracious Christian virtues that made his ministry a blessing not only as teacher but as pastor and friend. The community founded in him a heroic champion of all moral movements that meant for clean government and noble living. He was a strong leader in the cause of temperance. The older members of the community refer to the fraternal relationships between Rev. Dr. Evans and Rev. Dr. Winslow of the Congregational church as being exceptionally happy. These relationships were united in evangelical and moral enterprises that were undertaken during the years of their ministry in this city. Dr. Evans was a member of the G. A. R., having served in the Civil war.

Besides serving the Willimantic Baptist church, Dr. Evans was pastor of churches in Shelburne Falls, Amesbury and New Haven. He was also pastor of the Calvary Baptist church in Torrington and for many years was superintendent of missions and secretary of the Baptist convention of Connecticut. Dr. Evans is survived by his wife, who was Isabel Ovington, two sons and two daughters. The older son, Henry Ovington Evans, resides in Philadelphia and the other son is Dr. Philip Saffery Evans, professor in the University of Chicago. One daughter, Mary White Evans, lives at home and the other daughter is Mrs. Wendell M. Strong of Glen Ridge, N. J.

The funeral is to be held at the Emanuel Baptist church at Brooklyn, N. Y., tomorrow (Saturday) and will be conducted by Rev. Dr. Humpstone.

Electric Lighting for Town Hall.
The selectmen met Thursday afternoon to preparations for lighting the town hall by electricity. The specifications decided upon call for electric lights for the auditorium, second floor, stage, gallery, coat rooms, toilet room, dressing room and the stairway leading thereto. A three-wire 110-220 volt service will be used, large enough to carry the entire building for electric lighting in the future. The specifications call for entrance fixtures, allowing not over 2 percent drop with all lights burning. Toilet, hall and stair landings are to have close-fitting fixtures and the auditorium to have a fixture above two feet long, O. B. finish and steel shades with suitable holders. The front entrance fixtures are to be wired 345 to 360 volts and to be six foot long, with suitable code of rules is to be followed.

In the pinocle contest, Comins and Mustard of the Alerts scored 3, and Kearns and Sullivan of the Montgomerys 4. The Excelsors won from the Hill Tops, thereby taking Tuesday the Alerts for first place in the pinocle score.

Plans Special Programme.

Pictures Municipal Ice Plant.
A local amateur photographer has taken views of the city's new ice plant. He has a sense of humor and it was whispered Thursday he was to present one of the photographs to Mayor Dunn with the inscription: "Mayor Dunn's ice-plantation hospital for cold feet."

A Correction.
A. J. Bowen & Son have purchased the business of Attorney Curtis, who is to go to Hartford to practice. Lawyer Curtis has been practicing law in May, Friday and Saturday and in this city Wednesday and Thursday, not in the capital city as stated in Thursday's Bulletin.

Exploits Willimantic.
At the state capitol Thursday Mayor Dunn distributed cards to the senate and house with this inscription: "Willimantic is the only city in Connecticut that cuts any ice."

Gave Washington Tea.
Mrs. B. G. Thompson gave a Washington tea at her home, 278 Prospect street, Thursday evening. She invited the Minerva club of fourteen young ladies to be present in honor of her daughter, Mrs. Ralph Mason. The decorations were in keeping with the occasion and the place cards were in sovereign form.

Imitative Recital.
Miss Gay Zenola MacLauren of New York presented an imitative recital of Bought and Paid For, a four act play by George Broadhurst at town hall, Thursday evening. The affair was under the auspices of the local G. R. chapter. The cast of characters interpreted were six. Miss MacLauren finely displayed her versatility as an elocutist and actress and the keen wit and pathos of her delineations were portrayed with rare artistic skill.

Won Volley Ball League Game.
The first game in the series of contests in the Business Men's Volley Ball league was played at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium Thursday evening. Two games were contested between the Jersey and White teams, the latter winning the first game by a score of 21 to 4 and the second 21 to 9.

Single Men Were Winners.
The Married and Single men again contested for honors in the duck pin bowling tournament at the Y. M. C. A. hall, Tuesday evening. The following result: Married Men: G. Whitford, 75-78-69; J. Hurley, 69-72-75; E. Strong, 60-61-59; total 515. Single Men: R. Sheffield, 74-68-67; W. Sheffield, 65-58-50; William Gorman, 63-70-61, total 651.

Citizens Have a Kick.
The Legislative committee on Cities and Boroughs with the aid of local politicians railroaded through the petition of the amendment to Willimantic's city charter which provides for the establishing of a bureau of civil engineering. They reported favorably on the bill Wednesday. Citizens of this city feel that Mayor Dunn and the representatives ought to have given them the courtesy of being confronted on this measure. The municipal ice plant proposition, sprung on the city council and good or bad it may turn out the voters are not satisfied not to have their employees, the city officials, consult the proprietors of the city business institutions on important municipal departures. The city officials and their servants are simply playing politics.

Morning Shopping Grows In Favor

The Christmas invitation of the merchant to "shop early" is still bearing fruit. Women know well that by shopping early in the morning their purchases can be made with far greater leisure and comfort and with the feeling that what they buy will be thoroughly satisfactory.

At that time the stores are not so crowded; the stocks are all in good order, so that time is saved in finding the best shade or size, and the clerks are not fagged out.

All the merchants who advertise in THE BULLETIN want you to do your shopping at the most favorable time of the day. Everything is in your favor for morning shopping.

Read THE BULLETIN carefully and constantly every morning, so that you may be ready to go shopping early in the morning. Plan your shopping tour in advance. Know what to buy and where to buy to best advantage. When special sales are advertised the opening hour is not too early to visit the store.

NO. 15.—PRESIDENT CHESTER A. ARTHUR.

A GROUP of Virginians were on the stands at Old Point Comfort, and Mrs. Harnden of Fredericksburg was telling us a romance when we were joined by Mr. Arthur, fresh from his defeat at the hands of President Hayes and Secretary Sherman.

Knowing that he was an ardent lover of stones of all grades, from the common varieties along the roadside to the diamonds from the treasure mines of the world, we showed him the amethysts we had found in the sand. He admired them and began to talk of stones, taking a chamois skin bag of jewels from his pocket and pouring them upon his open palm, saying:

"It is a desecration to put them into jeweller's settings and wear them as clothing. They should live for their own beauty's sake."
"But you cannot go around pouring them from a bag upon your outstretched hand," I said; "and if you carry them about in your pocket no one can see them, and all the enjoyment they might give is lost in the darkness."

"At any rate, I can have some of these pretty ones you have found and give you to wear."

He took some of our amethysts and put them in his pocket and went on to talk of the fancied origin of various precious stones, saying as he selected a beautiful diamond from the collection he held on his hand.

"This was a drop of dew in the heart of a rose until the sun's glowing rays looked on the rose, till a shaft of light from his eye pierced the glittering dewdrop and filled it with all the shimmering colors that go to make up light. Then the rose asked him to make it last forever for her sake. It is the emblem of innocence because it reflects all the colors of life and retains its purity."

"I suppose," the stars first broke through the night sky."

He accepted the suggestion and taking up a perfect pearl he held it up to the light and continued:

"This is the tear that the Angel of Pity shed for the sins and sorrows of the world."

"The diamond," said one, "must be a bit shattered from the gold bars of sunset."

"In some countries," observed Mr. Arthur, "jewels are idols to be worshipped with solemn ceremonies. To me they are varying glints of the light of God. The little gray bits of rock are as full of light as their more flashing sisters, but they must have the earthy masque polished off so that their soul can shine through."

From that time went on to talk about flowers:

"They are jewels in which life is further developed and we see them grow and blossom. And then we think they fade away and die. But when the blooming time comes again, they are in all their beauty; the ruby in the red rose, the pearl in the lily, the diamond in the orchid, the topaz in the daffodil, the emerald in the fallage. And these little sunny amethysts are the crescents that come to tell us that spring is here."

Something in his voice and bearing reminded me of home and I remarked:

"Mr. Arthur, one would think that you were a Southern gentleman, your manners are so Southern."

He replied:

"You know I married a Virginia girl. I was a Vermont school teacher, and I may be indebted to her for some of my Southern manners."

"And Vermont and Virginia had not even a ripple in war times?"

"No," we agreed never to discuss sectional topics and never to mention slavery and I am careful to veil with modest silence the fact that my first important brief was in the Lemmon case, in which I defended the right of a slave to liberty when an adult, was once on free soil. In fact, for much of the success of my early practice I am indebted to the dusky people, for a little later I won a victory in pleading the rights of a colored woman who was put off a street car in New York because she belonged to the prescribed race."

In a conversation with Mr. William Travers and his daughter near the close of his administration Mr. Arthur said:

"I came into the Presidency when even some of my warmest and best friends did not give me their confidence. I was considered a mere politician. They doubted my ability and my straightforwardness. I tried to make good and to give an administration that could be looked at through a magnifying glass. I had been charged with abuse of power to serve political ends and I wanted to prove that I was of unswerving integrity."

He was always exquisitely groomed, neat, artistic, polished and cultured, unassuming, of unswerving honesty, and with a kindness that went out to all sufferers. He gave an order on his gardener for flowers to be sent to any ill person whose name I should send him. And during his administration many a poor family who had never seen rare flowers were blessed with them from the conservatory of the White House."
